

DPC Leads Employers into the Future of Healthcare

With remote work looking like the new normal, companies are starting to rethink the employment and benefits process entirely.

THE PROBLEM

Employers with nationwide locations, mobile workers, or remote employees need a no-claims healthcare solution that is both affordable and easily accessible.

THE SOLUTION

Traditional DPC practices and hybrid DPC providers are working together to ensure people of all socioeconomic backgrounds can get the healthcare they need to live happier and healthier lives. This no-claims model of healthcare provides unlimited primary care, telehealth, and other benefits for a low monthly membership fee.

TRADITIONAL DIRECT PRIMARY CARE

Traditional DPC has been favored by traditional business models, but it's limited to one geographic location.

HYBRID DIRECT PRIMARY CARE

The hybrid DPC model is especially beneficial when it's part of a nationwide network of providers accessible in any state. This has been a game-changer for nationwide companies or employers expanding their remote workforce across state lines.
